Lecturer with Specific Duties (f/m/d) 50%
“Digital Media in the Food and Health Sectors” at the Department of Food · Nutrition · Facilities

What to expect

- Focusing on the “use of digital media in the food and health sectors” (e.g. social media, digital health applications, apps, etc.), you will teach at the Department of Food · Nutrition · Facilities (at both Bachelor’s and Master’s level).
- You will be responsible for supervising the IT room, including giving expert advice on the nutrition software provided (Prodi, Ebis).
- We value your commitment to helping us develop our range of courses and to promoting continuous process improvement.
- You will be there to provide dedicated advice and support to your students.
- You will also independently supervise project work, Bachelor’s theses and Master’s theses in the designated areas of specialisation.

Your background

- Your skill set includes a university degree (Master’s or an equivalent level) in Home Economics & Nutrition Science or Nutrition Science.
- You also have several years of practical experience (a minimum of 2 years) in the designated core area of teaching.
- We expect you to have a sound knowledge or keen interest in digitalisation and/or the use of social media in nutrition.
- Good written and spoken English, as well as international publications, would be valuable assets.
- You enjoy sharing knowledge and getting young people excited about your subject area.

We offer you

- You can look forward to permanent employment as a Lecturer with Specific Duties with a teaching load of 12 hours per week per semester (50%), with an expected starting as soon as possible.
- For this responsible assignment, we offer you remuneration over and above the standard salary up to pay scale (TV-L) 12 or 13, dependent on your personal qualifications and professional experience.
- In addition, you can expect very flexible working hours, helping ensure a perfect work-life balance.
- Exciting new challenges await you, and our motivated and collaborative team looks forward to welcoming you.

We look forward to receiving your online application by 19 June 2023. For reasons of data security, please apply exclusively via our online form.
